Law Fair Strategies for Success

Know Your Goal Before You Arrive

Ask targeted questions at a law fair that go beyond basic statistics you can easily look up online. Good questions spark a real conversation and reveal the true character, culture, and support system of each law school. If you're nervous, listen to a few conversations before initiating a conversation on your own.

If you are a exploring or a few years away from applying

Goals may include: learning about culture, unique programs, becoming a strong applicant. Consider asking about:

- Campus culture (collaborative, independent, etc.)
- Support for exploration of legal specialties / experiential learning opportunities
- Geographic regions with majority of graduates / alumni network
- Best things for you to be doing outside the classroom to prepare and explore interest in law

If you are close to or currently applying to law school

Goals may include: finalizing school lists, maximizing aid, standing out as an applicant. Consider asking about:

- Views on application timing advantages/disadvantages
- Are there areas where applicants frequently miss the mark
- Do you automatically consider applicants for scholarships
- What typeof student thrives in your program
- What does the OCI (on campus interview) process look like and who recruits

Introduce Yourself with Confidence

You don't need to be perfect!

- Be engaged and maintain positive body language
- Make eye contact, smile and introduce yourself confidently

Simple Formula

Name + Major/Year + Goal (why are you here)

Quick tip: Clairity, preparation, and curiousity matter more than having every detail decided. Ending with a question can help continue the conversation.
